Opportunity is local before it is scalable.

Across Jos, builders operate in different sectors and settings. What they do not always share is access to peers, practical expertise, visibility, and opportunity.

Tin City Founders makes local enterprise easier to see, connect, and strengthen.

ONE KIND OF BUILDER

The partnership question: How can useful access reach the people already building—not just the most visible ones?

No founder should build alone.

01 · CONTRIBUTION

Useful before visible.

Founders are encouraged to share what they know, make relevant introductions, and offer practical help before asking the room for more.

02 · TRUST

Relationships before noise.

The community protects a founder-dense space where practical exchange can happen with dignity, relevance, and mutual accountability.

A not-for-profit platform for entrepreneurship, innovation, and shared economic progress.

The community is a repeatable local engine.

A trusted rhythm of contact, support, and founder visibility makes collaboration easier to activate and learn from.

PARTNER IMPLICATION Each element offers a credible route for a partner's expertise, tools, access, or research to meet a defined founder need.

A live founder base is already taking shape.

Built In Jos makes local enterprise more visible while preserving founder consent and clear distinctions between raw submissions and public profiles.

Interpretation: this is a practical community signal, not a claim of complete market coverage.

What partners gain is credible local reach.

01 · LOCAL CONTEXT

Founder-dense insight.

An informed route into the lived opportunities, constraints, and ambitions shaping entrepreneurship in Jos.

02 · USEFUL ACCESS

Resources that can land.

A practical environment for expertise, tools, research, or market access to meet builders who can use them.

03 · CO-DESIGNED ACTION

Activation with a purpose.

Partnership activities can be shaped around a defined founder group, a real need, and a clear operating rhythm.

04 · EARNED CREDIBILITY

Presence through contribution.

Local credibility comes from offering something useful—not simply being seen.

One community model can serve several mandates.

Tin City Founders provides a locally credible delivery and learning context, adapted to the question each partner needs to answer.

PARTNER TYPE	FOCUS	WHAT THE MODEL CAN SUPPORT
Government institutions	PLACE	Inclusive local economic development, founder visibility, and grounded ecosystem convening.
International organizations	DELIVERY	Programme engagement and learning close to the people an intervention is meant to serve.
Enterprise platforms & VCs	ACCESS	Founder readiness, thoughtful market access, and a more informed view of emerging local operators.
Foundations & impact partners	CAPACITY	Practical capability building and community infrastructure with visible local signals.

◆ A partnership should feel relevant to the people it is designed to serve.

Three ways to turn intent into useful action.

Begin with the partnership question, the founder group that matters, and the contribution that can make a practical difference.

01 · PROGRAMME SPONSORSHIP

Support a focused founder need.

Underwrite a founder cohort, learning series, or capability clinic designed around a defined local need.

Useful contribution

Learning resources, expert time, access-to-tools, or focused programme support.

02 · STRATEGIC COLLABORATION

Bring a platform into the room.

Bring expertise, technology, market access, or research capacity into a community built for practical exchange.

Useful contribution

Technical expertise, partner pathways, knowledge sessions, or research collaboration.

03 · PLACE-BASED INVESTMENT

Strengthen the conditions for enterprise.

Support local convening and collaborative solutions that help resilient small businesses stay and grow.

Useful contribution

Convening support, place-based visibility, local delivery capacity, or community infrastructure.

We design for evidence, not attention.

A partnership activation begins with a shared question and a visible pathway for learning—not a promise of headline numbers.

OPERATING CONVICTION “The goal is not logo placement. It is a useful intervention that founders can feel and partners can learn from.”

Ninety days to first proof.

A practical starting arc for a partner and the Tin City Founders community to test, learn, and decide what to build next.

WINDOW	STAGE	WHAT HAPPENS
DAYS 01–15	Align	Set the shared objective, founder profile, activation format, delivery owners, and evidence to capture.
DAYS 16–45	Activate	Deliver the first useful touchpoint: a convening, capability clinic, spotlight run, or access-to-tools pathway.
DAYS 46–70	Learn	Review participation, founder feedback, community requests, and partner-relevant signals.
DAYS 71–90	Build proof	Document the first cycle and shape a renewal, deeper programme, or wider ecosystem collaboration.

◆ The right ninety-day plan is co-designed around the partnership question—not imposed as a template.

The partnership standard is simple.

A strong partnership joins trusted local context with resources that founders can genuinely use.
